Italian Deputy PM Luigi Di Maio's party, M5S, says it plans to join the opposition against the government's 2018 budget proposal next Monday, if talks with the government prove fruitless. "We are ready to join the opposition if we don't reach a deal with them," M5S Deputy Leader and Economy and Finance Minister Luigi Di Maio said on Monday, adding that the government was being unreasonable and stubborn. M5S and the Democratic Party (PD) have been leading the calls for government resignations following the failure to find a deal that would make it easier for Italy to pay back its debts and restore confidence in the country's banking system. The anti-establishment parties want sweeping reforms including the repeal of the 2013 budget austerity law, which placed limits on public spending and privatizations. An M5S official said the government should close the existing tax loopholes that allow companies to pay back little tax on billions of euros in revenues, especially in the oil and gas sector. Corruption allegations On Sunday, M5S submitted its demands to the finance ministry, which are expected to be considered during Tuesday's meeting with the government. "They have refused to take part in a dialogue. So our mission is to demand the resignation of the government, which has proven it cannot govern," Di Maio told Italy's La Repubblica newspaper. M5S has also demanded the resignation of Prime Minister Paolo Gentiloni, who failed to push through vital reforms last week in parliament. It has also accused the government of corruption as leaked messages showed government officials involved in a scandal surrounding an offshore trust holding shares in an insurance company where Di Maio served as a director. Lawmakers said on Saturday the country would have to ask the European Union for a bailout if it missed a deadline to pay back its debts on Tuesday. Di Maio told La Repubblica that M5S's proposals were aimed at reorganizing the
